Fifty years ago, the Young Naturalist Foundation launched OWL magazine for kids 8–12. OWL was an acronym for “Outdoors and Wildlife,” and the magazine was designed to develop a love of the environment and scientific discovery in its readers. In the five decades since, the company became Owlkids, expanding its vision and mandate, and launching two other children’s magazines—Chickadee in 1978 and Chirp in 1997—and a book division. Since 1976, Owlkids has kept kids front and centre, creating content that engages, informs, and inspires a love of reading and learning.

Like the magazines, Owlkids Books respects children’s intelligence, imagination, and curiosity. Our list includes a diversity of voices and experiences, and it is recognized for its signature energy, creativity, sense of humor and thematic relevance. Our books have garnered a range of accolades including major reviews, best-of-the-year lists, and awards recognition, and they’ve been licensed in more than 20 languages around the world.

Snail & Stump Series

How Not to Rescue a Snail

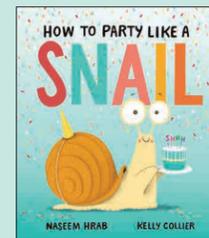

Written by Naseem Hrab • Illustrated by Kelly Collier

Big changes make Snail feel anxious, but with Grammy Slug at his side, he agrees to brave a new hiking trail that he’s never explored. Unfortunately, just as Snail is beginning to enjoy his new adventure, a hand comes down from above and deposits him somewhere strange and new. Forced to step up and find his inner hero, Snail figures out how to get himself and his new friends, the Shellsteins, home. He realizes that sometimes big changes can help you discover you’re stronger than you think.

Backpack

Written and illustrated by Katie Arthur

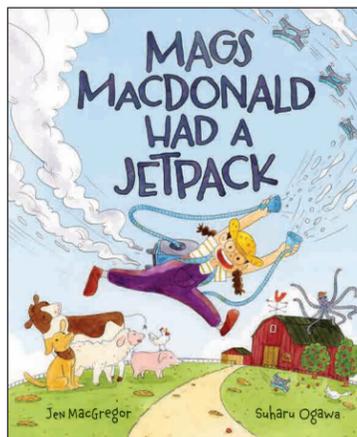

Picture Book • Fall 2026
40 pages • 8 x 10.5 • Ages 4–7

A meditation on backpacks and their place in our lives from the perspective of a young girl. Whether you call it a book bag, a rucksack, or a knapsack, there is something very special about a backpack. It comes in all shapes and colours. If you're carrying one, it means you're probably going somewhere—or coming from somewhere. There's lots of wonderful stuff inside it! All the bits and bobbles of your life held together with a squish and a zip. And you can always count on it to rest on your back, like a hug. You carry your backpack...and your backpack carries you.

Mags MacDonald Had a Jetpack

Written by Jen MacGregor • Illustrated by Suharu Ogawa

Picture Book • Fall 2026
32 pages • 8.25 x 10 • Ages 3–6

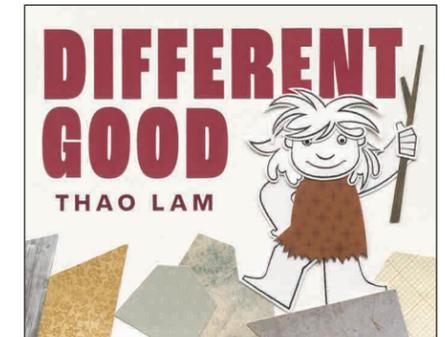

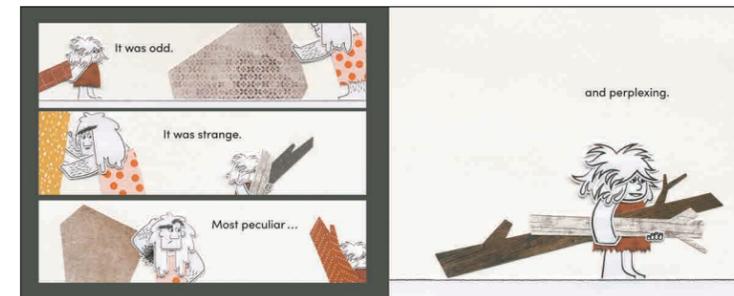

Mags MacDonald has a whole lot of chores to do on her grandpa's farm. To get them all done, she turns to some wacky and wonderful technological inventions to help her, but Mags' ingenious inventions turn out to be not so helpful after all. It's a good thing she has so many friends who show up willing to work! This tech-y twist on a classic nursery rhyme is full of details that will tickle the funny bone, spark the imagination, and encourage creative problem-solving.

Different Good

Written and illustrated by Thao Lam

For two early humans, every day is the same...until their brand-new baby arrives. All of a sudden, their lives are transformed by their imaginative and inventive child, who introduces them to new ways of being and thinking. Soon, the bemused parents begin to understand that there just might be more than one way to do things. A celebration of difference and of being true to oneself that will also elicit lots of giggles!

Shake This Book!

Written and illustrated by Dave Whamond

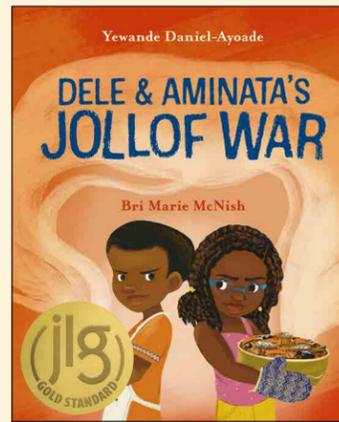

Give this book a shake! Egged on by a rabbit, readers are invited to find out what happens if they shake this book really hard. The result? Utter chaos! The hippo and moose are jumbled into a hippopotamoose, the ladybug and the pug become a lady-pug, and the koala and the owl become a ko-owl-a bear. But that's just the beginning! New shakes mean even more jumbling of body parts and the reader making an even bigger mess! The hopelessly mixed-up animals then beg readers to shake the book again to put everyone right.

Dele and Aminata's Jollof War

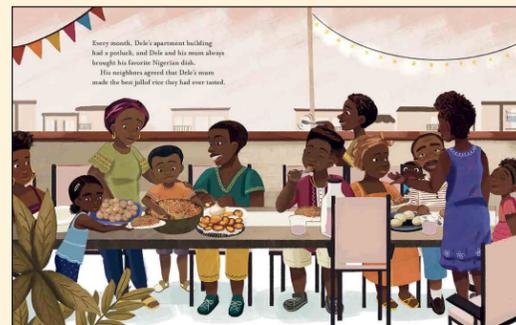

Written by Yewande Daniel-Ayoade • Illustrated by Bri Marie McNish

Picture Book • Fall 2026
36 pages • 8 x 10 • Ages 4–7

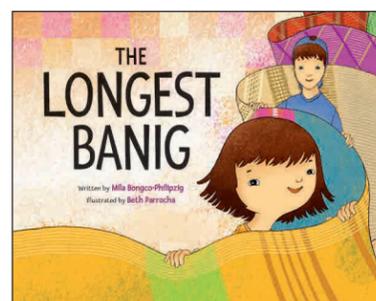

A Junior Library Guild selection 2026

Dele's Mum's jollof rice is his favourite Nigerian dish. It's also the most popular dish at their neighbourhood potluck. When a new girl, Aminata, brings her mum's Senegalese-style jollof rice to the potluck and claims it's the best jollof rice, a competition stirs. Soon, it turns into an all-out jollof war! That is, until a recipe disaster helps Dele and Aminata realize that they can make the very best jollof rice if they work together.

The Longest Banig

Written by Mila Bongco-Philpzig • Illustrated by Beth Parrocha

Picture Book • Fall 2026
32 pages • 9.125 x 7.25 • Ages 4–7

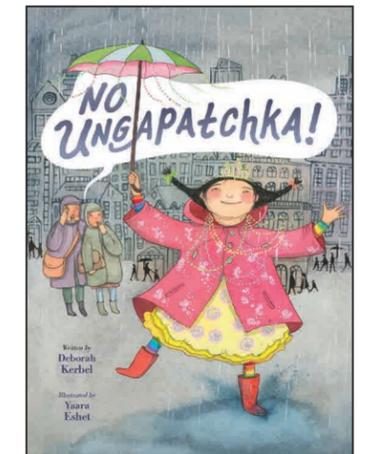

Will Karina overcome her fear of heights to reach the Banig Festival in time? She's tasked with delivering her nanay's banig, a traditional Filipino handwoven mat, to the town center to enter it into a contest, but she has to cross a high wooden bridge to get it there. Her clever plan? To roll the long banig onto the bridge so that she can walk along it without seeing the rushing river below. Includes an author's note about banigs and the significance of banig-weaving as a tradition passed down for generations.

No Ungapatchka!

Written by Deborah Kerbel • Illustrated by Yaara Eshet

Sarah's excited to choose her own clothes for school this year. But her older sisters have lots of rules about dressing for school, and the most important one is no "ungapatchka"—their Bubbe's word for things that are bright, busy, weird, or loud. Sarah tries her best to listen to her sisters, but their rules seem boring. She wants to wear glittery outfits with colours, patterns, and sparkles! With Bubbe's encouragement, Sarah decides to make her own rules for how to dress...and finds the joy of standing up for herself, even if that means standing out.

We All Cast Shadows

Written by James Gladstone • Illustrated by Salini Perera

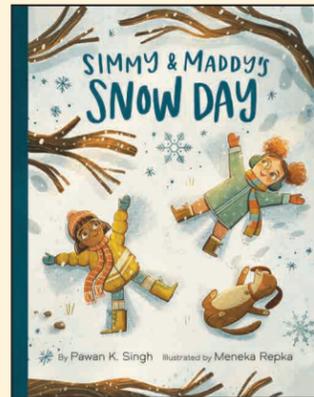

On a walk to the park, a young girl delights in the shadows of the city: dog shadows and bicycle shadows, bus shadows and lots of people shadows! When one shy child hides in the shadows, the girl invites him to join her shadow play. At the park, daylight fades to night and the two new friends see the biggest shadow of all as the Earth casts its entire planet-sized shadow on the moon in a total lunar eclipse!

Simmy & Maddy's Snow Day

Written by Pawan K. Singh • Illustrated by Meneka Repka

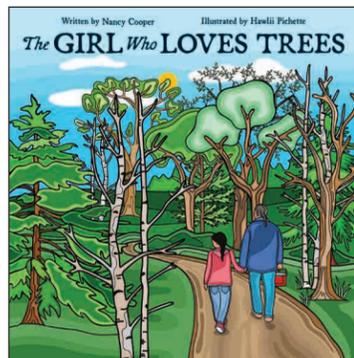

Picture Book • Fall 2026
32 pages • 7.75 x 10 • Ages 3–7

On the morning of a perfect snowfall, two friends meet outside to play. After catching snowflakes on their tongues, having a snowball fight, and making snow angels, the friends discover the snow is also perfect for making a snowperson. Then Simmy has the idea to dress up their snowperson using clothing from each of their homes. The result is a unique twist on a snow-day tradition—a larger-than-life, silk sari- and wool toque-wearing snowwoman! A cheerful, wordless tribute to winter fun encouraging play, imagination, and teamwork.

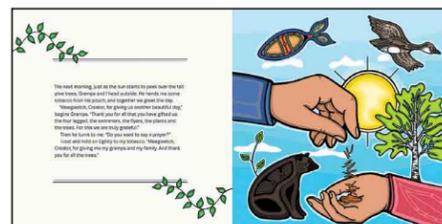

The Girl Who Loves Trees

Written by Nancy Cooper • Illustrated by Hawlii Pichette

Picture Book • Fall 2026
32 pages • 9 x 9 • Ages 5–8

In this gentle intergenerational story, a young Indigenous girl is excited to visit her grandfather's house on the reserve. It means eating her favorite foods, listening to music, and enjoying the natural world around them—especially all the different trees. When Grandpa suggests a hike to collect an offering of cedar, the girl worries. What if they hurt the cedar? He explains that they will thank the tree with a gift and that he will snip the few branches very carefully. On their walk, the two share knowledge and understanding about the forest and its many creatures.

How Food Connects Us

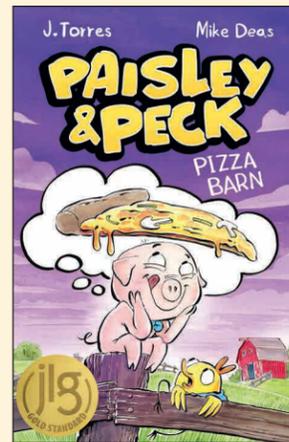

Written by Heather Camlot • Illustrated by Ally Jaye Reeves

Food is a huge part of our lives. In sharing a meal, we learn a lot about the world and the people in it. This is an engaging breakdown of what, why, and how we eat. From the stone age to the modern era, this information-rich book takes readers on a journey through time, examining the evolution of food practices and our relationship to food through the years. Touching on history, culture, nutrition, health and safety, sustainability, and much more, readers will learn all about the food they see on grocery store shelves and understand how it got there.

Paisley & Peck: Pizza Barn

Written by J. Torres • Illustrated by Mike Deas

Misfit barnyard friends Paisley and Peck are back! Paisley has had enough of slop, once and for all. After a sly suggestion from mischievous city mouse Slick, Paisley sets his sights on the very finest dining experience: pizza! But Slick's pizza plans lead to nothing but trouble, and Paisley is left hungry and hopeless. Peck must cook up an imaginative solution to help his friend's wildest culinary dreams come true.

Paisley & Peck: Jurassic Farm

Written by J. Torres • Illustrated by Mike Deas

The first book in a brand-new graphic novel series about two misfit barnyard friends who grapple with the self-discovery, rebellion, and awkwardness that comes with growing up. Paisley is a pig who prefers fine dining over slop, and Peck is a young rooster who doesn't like mornings—so he doesn't want to grow up to be an alarm clock! When Peck learns that his ancient ancestors were dinosaurs, he hatches a new career plan: Become a Ty-rooster-saurus Rex!

Feet

Written and illustrated by Ruth Ohi

From big elephants to splashy ducks and zippy cheetahs, there are so many kinds of feet—and so many places they can take us. Alternating examples of wildly amazing animal feet, like sticky lizard toes and galloping horse hooves, are paired with stories of where our own feet take us each day. Together, they celebrate the everyday adventures our feet carry us on: to friends, to happy dance times, to cozy bedtime stories, and to new adventures.

The Perfect Ride

Written by Anne Laurel Carter • Illustrated by Athena Cooper

A young girl in a wheelchair has a goal this winter: to go for a perfect sled ride down the perfect hill. She paints her sled and waits patiently for ideal snow. Not wet—too sticky, not icy—too slippery. And one morning, when she wakes up to a world covered in fluffy snow, she knows the day has come. She makes it up the hill with a little help and, strapped in safely, takes off on the perfect ride. A simple story that describes all the excitement of a sled ride with playful lyricism and thoughtful inclusion.

The Someday Clover

Written by Elizabeth Davaze • Illustrated by Lauren DeGraaf

Moving to a new place can feel like bad luck, especially when everything and everyone is unfamiliar. So starts a child's determined quest to find a four-leaf clover. The hunt fails to turn up a lucky clover, but it does turn up all kinds of treasures: soft feathers, sprigs of catkins, a soft blue eggshell, and even a mystery key. In the end, the child discovers that luck isn't something we find but something we make by discovering the beauty and friendships just waiting all around us.

Stick Bug Rules

Written by Naseem Hrab • Illustrated by Kelly Collier

For stick bugs, hide-and-seek is a serious business—a matter of life and death. So when it comes to hiding, stick bugs are real sticklers, with rules on top of rules. Unless you're Darryl, who refuses to follow rules and is deliberately terrible at hiding. In fact, he becomes so fed up with rules that he doesn't want to play hide-and-seek unless there are no rules at all. But without Darryl, the others discover a problem: they're all too good at hiding, and the game stops being fun. Soon, every stick bug starts hiding like Darryl—as in, not hiding at all. Unfortunately, this is excellent news for their most dangerous predator, and Darryl soon realizes that some rules exist for a reason.

Bob

Written by Susan Sweet • Illustrated by Sara Sarhangpour

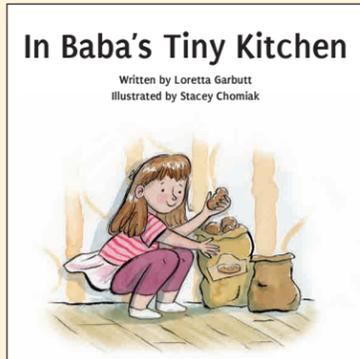

Bob is a bright red balloon who longs to soar, but he's feeling a bit...deflated. Stuck hovering at ground level and stung by the other balloons scoffing at him from high above, Bob has nearly given up hope of ever soaring freely in the sky. But then he meets Bernice, and her kind words and gentle encouragement start to buoy him up. Soon, Bob is sharing that kindness with others and feeling lighter than air.

In Baba's Tiny Kitchen

Written by Loretta Garbutt • Illustrated by Stacey Chomiak

Picture Book • Winter 2027
32 pages • 10 x 9 • Ages 3–6

Outside, there's a blizzard brewing, but in Baba's tiny kitchen, red borscht simmers on the stove, perogies sizzle in butter, and sauerkraut bubbles in the oven. All the scrumptious smells say "ready to eat"—but not yet! The family must wait until Dido finishes the farm chores. At last, he bursts through the door in a rush of cold air that sweeps the room. But the smells of Baba's tiny kitchen soon take over once again, and the whole family tucks into a hearty winter lunch.

The Share Chair

Written by Susan Hughes • Illustrated by Andrea Armstrong

Picture Book • Spring 2027
32 pages • 10 x 9.75 • Ages 4–7

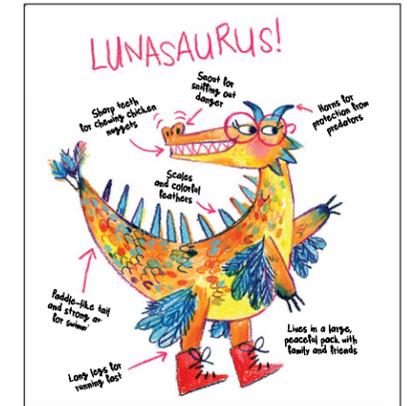

In this endearing wordless picture book, an observant child watches from his new apartment in a busy neighbourhood as people pass by distracted and with no time for greetings. Noticing that an elderly man has nowhere to rest on his daily walk, the child takes his favorite chair from home and places it in the abandoned lot next door, adding an inviting note that says, "The Share Chair." This act of empathy starts the transformation of this unused space into a place of connection. Strangers become neighbors, the street becomes a community, and the child's apartment becomes a home.

Luna's Field Guide to Dinosaurs

Written by Kendra Brown • Illustrated by Udayana Lugo

Luna loves dinosaurs so much she wants to be one—but which kind? There's only one way to find out: field research! She heads into her backyard to observe dinosaurs in their "natural habitat," encountering a veggie-munching Kentrosaurus, a towering herd of Argentinosaurus, and a very loud group of Parasaurolophus—but none feel quite right. Then Luna discovers that the mighty Spinosaurus is considered the King of Dinosaurs. Perfect! Or is it? In the end, Luna realizes the best dinosaur to be is one that's uniquely her: the amazing LUNASAURUS!

Embroidered
The Story of a Kantha Blanket

Written and illustrated by Farida Zaman

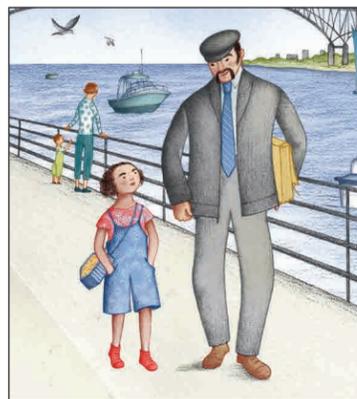

For hundreds of years, women in Bangladesh have transformed their worn sarees into kantha blankets—layered, hand-stitched quilts passed down through families. Told from the point of view of one such blanket, the reader learns about this blanket’s role in the lives of four generations. Each mother wraps her newborn daughter in its soft folds. Over time, the blanket’s layers grow thin, but new cloth is added, and new stories are embroidered into the cotton fabric. Each time the blanket passes to its next owner, it gathers memories, carrying forward a growing tapestry of family history.

Papa Was a Sea Captain

Written by Theresa Dos Santos • Illustrated by Marie LaFrance

One summer, a girl faces weeks alone with her papa while her mama cares for an ailing grandparent in faraway Portugal. Papa doesn’t play street hockey or ride bikes. He only seems to care about ships! But as she witnesses his nautical life firsthand and hears about his adventures at sea, the girl discovers a new side to Papa. Inspired by the author’s Luso-Canadian family, this story celebrates a child-parent bond forming as they open up to learning about each other’s worlds.

Papa used to be a sea captain. These days, he sees a marine surveyor with the Coast Guard.
 "So what do you do?"
 "I make sure everyone understands the boating rules."
 "What else?"
 "I repair ships. Like liners and oil tankers. I'm also the Harbormaster."
 It just sounded like paperwork to me.

Our Sky
One Colorful Moment Around the World

Written by Maria Marianayagam • Illustrated by Josée Bisailon

"My sky is your sky. Your sky is mine." In one instant, children from ten countries around the world look up and see skies that are an array of colours: from pinky-red to purple-green to black. In this innovative book, the science behind the changing skies, colour, light, and time zones are introduced using poetic and scientifically precise language. Richly informative and beautifully illustrated, this book showcases the diversity of our skies (and experiences) on one shared planet.
